

2017 EYCF Board of Directors

Leadership & Teamwork

Pam Ray (Chairman) is President/Owner of a government relations/advocacy business (20 years), a community volunteer and passionate parent of Christopher-22 and Sarah-18. Her entrepreneurial passion and lifelong love of the water combine in service to the Foundation's long-term focus on kids, careers and stewardship of our waters. Pam is also active with the Leukemia Cup Regatta/Fundraising and "Sailing Heals" BOD. She & husband, Dick McSeveney, share s/v Dream Builder with charities, STEM education programs and friends.

Tim Wilbricht (Vice Chairman) is an EYC member and is President and Owner of Annapolis Yacht Sales. He enjoys sailing, swimming, diving and all things related to watersports with his wife Mischelle and two sons, Noah -17 and Luke-14. As Vice Chair EYC Foundation board, he currently chairs the Career Fair Committee and Outstanding Marine Wizards Committee and serves on the Nomination, Finance and Fund Raising committees. He also serves on the board of the National Downs Syndrome Society and the Anne Arundel County Maritime Advisory Board.

Stephanie Reisinger (Treasurer) is an EYC member and long-time resident of Annapolis who enjoys the area's rich maritime history, sailing, and pretty much anything water related with her husband Mark and son Harrison. A certified public accountant and internal auditor, she presently works for the International Monetary Fund. In addition to her work with the Foundation, she also co-chairs ComicKey/Family Activities annually for the Annapolis Book Festival.

Virginia Tippie, (Secretary) is a coastal oceanographer. She has served in senior federal positions including: Director, EPA Chesapeake Bay Program; Director, NOAA National Ocean Service; and Director, Coastal America Partnership. A member of Eastport Yacht Club for 35 years, she is committed to the Foundation's mission. She currently chairs the EYC Environmental Committee and is the Foundation's Secretary. An avid boater and bay explorer, she is especially passionate about the Foundation's educational programs and stewardship efforts.

Jane Campbell-Chambliss is a lifelong resident of Annapolis, for 40 years has been a fine and decorative appraiser and auctioneer. She holds a Master degree, Morgan State University, a certificate in Connoisseurship in Fine and Decorative Arts, George Washington University, a business degree from Strayer College, in D.C. Jane serves on the Salvation Army and Historic Annapolis boards of directors. She loves sailing with her husband Pete on their catamaran "Dreamweaver."

Mary Ewenson is publisher of SpinSheet and PropTalk Magazines and PortBook Marine Services Guide. She grew up boating on the Severn River and is thoroughly committed to the marine industry. She was excited to join the Board of the EYC Foundation, because it fits perfectly with her mission to get more people out having more fun in boats on the Chesapeake Bay, and helping to promote careers and awareness of the maritime industry does just that.

David Fawley is the instructor of Marine Service Technology at the Center of Applied Technology- South, a career and technology center that takes high school students from the southern half of Anne Arundel County. Before taking that teaching position, David worked for years as a boatbuilder for Chesapeake Light Craft, Cutts and Case, Inc., Stone Boat Yard, and the WoodenBoat School, among others. David and his wife, Amy and son, Benjamin (12) sail a 35' Ericson out of their adopted city of Baltimore.

Amy Krimm, an account manager for SAIL Magazine and graduate of George Washington University first moved to Annapolis in 1993 to work for Chesapeake Bay Magazine and served as secretary for the MTAM. Amy's career with SAIL Magazine spans many regions including the Mid-Atlantic, West Coast and Western Canada territory and as European account manager. She enjoys her children Connor (20) and Keating (16), boating on the Chesapeake, tennis and photography. Amy is honored to be on the Foundation Board.

Martha "Marty" Lostrom is a member of EYC and co-owner (with husband Erik) of Scandia Marine Center. Marty loves all things related to being on the water. Marty and her husband actively race their CAL25 on the bay. Marty is also an active member in the marine trades community serving as Secretary of the Marine Trades Association of Maryland. Marty's professional priority is to help promote Maryland's marine trades and the many career opportunities in the industry.

Laura Pinto is the STEM Teacher Specialist for Advanced Studies and Programs in Anne Arundel County Public Schools. She lives in Annapolis and is a longtime Chesapeake Bay sailor and boater. Laura is co-chair of the Education Committee and enjoys bringing the excitement of STEM and the on-the water applications of STEM to the students in the Annapolis community elementary schools.

Tara Potter is a native Marylander and spent leisure time on the bay and its rivers as a child, and sailed competitively as an adult. Retired from Verizon and working part-time for the Maryland Senate, she owns her own consulting firm. Tara currently serves on the EYC Race Committee and Bylaws Committee, and also volunteers in the community with a focus on K-12 education and the Chesapeake Bay watershed.

Ed Wells, Vice Commodore of EYC, is very active in many committees supporting the club's mission and operations. Upon his election to Rear Commodore, he served as liaison to the Foundation & chose to continue on the BOD based on his belief in its meaningful programs. Ed is a Program Manager in the Space Exploration Sector of Johns Hopkins University Applied Physics Laboratory, a long time sailor on the Chesapeake Bay and lives aboard a Viking 44 MotorYacht.

Palma Wilson is a member of EYC and currently serves on the club's Special Events Committee and the Environmental Committee. She worked for the National Park Service for over 34 years retiring as the Deputy Superintendent of Grand Canyon National Park. EYCF's commitment to inspire and educate kids (and their parents) about the stewardship of the Chesapeake Bay, in partnership with the marine trades, continues her professional and personal focus on education and resource conservation and protection.

Liz Merrifield Filter (EYC Rear Commodore & EYCF Liaison) is an Olympic sailor and US champion, is Rear Commodore at Eastport Yacht Club and liaison to the EYC Foundation Board. She organizes community fundraisers and sailing regattas, and is proud to support efforts to create green events. Recently she served as a US delegate to World Sailing and is a member of the European Sailing Fraternity promoting a love for the water worldwide. She lives on the Chesapeake Bay with her husband Henry and their two teenagers.
